

PRO2KEM APPOINTS FIRST CEO

09:00 - 26 August 2003

An Ambitious Dundee biotechnology company assisted in its start-up by Scottish Enterprise Tayside has announced the appointment of its first chief executive.

Pro2Kem, which develops products and services for the pharmaceuticals and food and beverage sectors, has recruited Richard Ord to the new post.

He will work alongside company founder and chief technical officer Roger White and the firm's four other staff as they plan to market more of their products across the globe.

Mr Ord, 59, brings with him a wealth of experience in running innovative and developing biotech companies, managing research and development projects and operational and administrative management.
